CARROLL GLENN

With Carroll Glenn, America once more claims the world's most celebrated woman violinist . . . as it did in the days of the great Maud Powell. The richly endowed Miss Glenn was recently the subject of an article in the Saturday Evening Post which described her as "one of the few really popular woman violinists," a point emphatically confirmed by the extensive tours Miss Glenn plays each season. In addition to these recital tours Miss Glenn is held in high regard by the conductors of the land and is a frequent soloist with the principal symphonies. Miss Glenn also often appears in sonata recitals with her husband, the distinguished pianist Eugene List, both here and abroad.
